ZSI Reports Discovery of Two New Jumping Spiders in Meghalaya

Zoological Survey of India (ZSI) scientists discovered two new jumping spider species—Asemonea dentis and Colyttus nongwar—in Meghalaya, highlighting the region's importance as part of the Indo-Burma Biodiversity Hotspot.

The findings were published in Zootaxa, a leading international animal taxonomy journal by Magnolia Press, Auckland (New Zealand).

Both newly discovered species belong to the Salticidae family, known for stalking and pouncing rather than web-spinning.

Asemonea dentis is only the third species of Asemonea genus reported in India.

The name dentis (Latin: tooth) refers to a tooth-like projection on the male's palpal femur, which is a key identification feature.

Male Asemonea dentis are greenish-brown with a V-shaped pale-yellow abdominal mark, while females are creamy-white with black patterns.

Colyttus nongwar is only the second Indian species of the Oriental genus Colyttus.

The species Colyttus nongwar is named after Nongwar village in the Khasi Hills, where it was discovered.

Both sexes of Colyttus nongwar have an oval reddish-brown carapace, a light-brown abdomen, a creamy band, and five chevron-shaped patches.

Meghalaya has seen multiple recent spider discoveries, including Irura meghalaya (new species, May 2025) and India's first record of Thiania abdominalis, showing that arachnid diversity in the region remains under-documented.

Asian Development Bank Ups India's FY26 Growth Projection to 7.2%

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) released the Asian Development Outlook (ADO) December 2025 titled "Growth Steadies But Uncertainty Lingers", updating economic projections for India and developing Asia.

ADB raised India's GDP growth forecast for FY26 to 7.2% (up by 70 bps from 6.5%), citing strong domestic consumption boosted by recent tax cuts and GST reforms.

India recorded GDP growth of 8.2% in Q2 FY26, the highest in six quarters, compared to 7.8% in Q1, reflecting robust recovery momentum.

Despite the FY26 upgrade, ADB retained India's GDP growth projection for FY27 at 6.5%, showing stable long-term expectations.

ADB revised India's inflation outlook downward to 2.6% for FY26 (earlier 3.1%) due to GST reductions, easing food price inflation, strong agricultural output, and favourable weather conditions.

Inflation in India is projected to rise to 4.2% in FY27, aligning closer to the RBI's inflation target, reflecting normalising price trends.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) also increased its FY26 GDP growth estimate to 7.3%, up from 6.8%, after strong economic performance during July–September.

For developing Asia, ADB upgraded the CY25 growth forecast by 30 bps to 5.1%, up from 4.8% projected in ADO September 2025.

ADB also raised the CY26 growth outlook for developing Asia by 10 bps to 4.6%, signalling sustained regional recovery.

Inflation in developing Asia is expected to fall to 1.6% in CY25, down from 1.7%, mainly due to lower food inflation in India.

The CY26 inflation forecast for developing Asia remains unchanged at 2.1%, indicating stable price expectations.

A'ja Wilson Named TIME's Athlete of the Year 2025

TIME magazine has honoured A'ja Wilson, superstar forward of the Las Vegas Aces, as the 2025 Athlete of the Year for delivering one of the most dominant and historic seasons in professional basketball history.
