Kerala Becomes India's First Fully Digitally Literate State

Kerala has become the first fully digitally literate state in India after the successful completion of the first phase of the Digi Kerala project.

The announcement was made by Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan after surveys and training across all local bodies.

The survey covered 1.5 crore people from 83.46 lakh families and identified 21.88 lakh digitally illiterate individuals. Out of these, 21.87 lakh (99.98%) completed training and passed evaluations.

The programme ensured inclusivity, training people from all age groups, including senior citizens. The oldest participant was 104-year-old M.A. Abdullah Moulavi Baqavi from Ernakulam district.

Training was conducted through local bodies, reflecting Kerala's decentralised governance model and ensuring community participation.

With this achievement, citizens can now access e-governance services and welfare schemes like Ayushman Bharat, PM-Kisan, and Jan Dhan Yojana digitally, reducing dependence on intermediaries and promoting financial inclusion, especially for marginalised groups and women.

The initiative strengthens digital democracy, enabling citizens to file grievances, submit RTI requests, and participate in civic activities online, thereby enhancing transparency and accountability in governance.

Kerala's achievement aligns with the Digital India Mission and provides a model for other states by focusing on grassroots training rather than only infrastructure
